

History of the Bel Air Mansion

John Garland and Peggy Pollard built their home at the mouth of Deep Creek in Lancaster County, Virginia in 1942. Designed by Colonial Williamsburg architectural historian, Thomas Tileston Waterman, Bel Air was inspired by the Pollard ancestral home in King and Queen County, c. 1734.

Guest House

The Guest House sits 15 feet off a cove on Deep Creek. Picture and bay windows provide a beautiful view of sunsets over the Rappahannock River. The building is furnished with standard cabin-style furniture.
